AFRICAN AMERICAN MIDDLE SCHOOL STUDENT SUCCESS CONFERENCE

“Success is only meaningful and enjoyable if it feels like your own”

– Michelle Obama

March 2, 2018
North Gym 118
9am-1pm

CSU The California State University

This event is being sponsored in partnership with the CSU Chancellor's office

Justin Blakely,
Keynote Speaker

Justin Blakely is currently a 4th year graduating senior majoring in Africana Studies with a concentration in historical and political development and minoring in Criminal Justice. After graduating from California State University, Dominguez Hills in May 2018, he plans on attending law school with the intent to practice Constitutional/Civil rights law. Justin has been involved as a student leader at CSU Dominguez Hills since his freshmen year from first being elected as Vice President of the Organization of Africana Studies in 2014 and serving another full year as Vice President then going on to become President in his Junior year in the organization.

Justin served as an active member and speaker for the Male Success Alliance an organization at CSU Dominguez Hills that looks to increase the retention and success of young Black and Brown males in college. Justin was also a part of a group of four called the Black Student Leadership council who led to the establishment of The Rose Black Resource Center at CSU Dominguez Hills as well. Within Associated Students, Inc. Justin served as Director of Legislative Affairs for the 2016-2017 school year and in his role represented our well diverse 15,000 student body population as the voting member on the Board of Directors at the California State Student Association. As of July 1st, Justin was installed as the student body president of the university and a couple of his focuses of this year is looking to engage in transformative student engagement on this campus and look to build relationships amongst students, faculty and administrators so more collaboration can happen.
